NU'GEN

NuGen's Moorside Project aims to develop a new generation nuclear power station on land in west Cumbria, enough to power six million homes and equivalent to seven per cent of the UK's electricity requirements.

NuGen is a developing organisation, with a growing nuclear culture and an outstanding team, which will construct, operate and decommission Moorside Power Station, to the highest standards of safety, environmental protection, and performance.

The company's vision is to create safe, reliable, affordable, low-carbon energy using proven nuclear technology, in the knowledge that nuclear energy has a vital role to play in helping secure the future energy supplies for the UK, reduce carbon emissions for future generations, and achieve price stability for the bill payer.

Having conducted two stages of public consultation on its plans, with nearly 5,000 visitors and over 2,000 responses, NuGen has undertaken site characterisation and environmental studies, all of which is aiming to build a robust business case for investment.

Moorside will be the largest-ever private sector investment in the region and will provide a major economic benefit, to Cumbria and the entire north of England, creating jobs, developing infrastructure to the region, and delivering economic security for thousands of people.

NuGen's commitment to build Moorside is matched by its desire to maximise the benefit from the Moorside Project in every aspect. To do this, NuGen's role in the community is crucial; it aims to stimulate the additional benefits that an entrepreneurial and aspirational environment can bring. The company is determined to work with the west Cumbrian community to help it realise these benefits from the Moorside Project, and NuGen will continue to play an active role, working with schools on STEM education projects, community groups on environmental projects, volunteering in the community, and partnering with local youth charities.

Building on this, NuGen will partner with public and private organisations, through Well North and Well Whitehaven to understand from those who have succeeded in similar situations, how to realise the potential in Whitehaven and Copeland to unlock a healthier, happier, prosperous west Cumbria.
