NuGen becomes the 250th member of the Nuclear Industry Association

The Nuclear Industry Association (NIA) has announced NuGen as its 250th member company.

Chief Executive Keith Parker welcomed the new company and said it was “exciting news” for the UK’s nuclear sector. “We are delighted to welcome NuGen into the forefront of civil nuclear power developments in the UK. Their expertise is evident from the strong heritage of their parent companies GDF SUEZ, IBERDROLA and SSE.”

“They join us at a crucial stage in the development of a low-carbon future for Britain where renewables, clean coal, and particularly safe and secure new nuclear power will have a hugely important part to play.”

“We look forward to working closely with NuGen to ensure a stably-priced and secure energy future for the UK”.

The NIA represents some 53,000 British nuclear workers and campaigns for the UK’s low-carbon nuclear future. To celebrate becoming the 250th member, NuGen were presented with a commemorative photograph by NIA at their flagship Energy Choices Conference on 2 December.
